Angie's Angle Guest Speaker Report

Lynn Thomas gave an interesting talk about the Durrama program that is being run at the Narooma Primary school .It is about teaching the local children about their indigenous history about local landmarks flora and fauna and the history of initiation. She spoke of her father and relations telling her stories about this when she was a child . The program has had a positive impact on the children participating and it will continue .

Tertiary Student Report

Congradulations to Maia Zucco her results from this semester were all distinctions this is a great effort.. Since she last spoke to you all she has thoroughly enjoyed her semester, which involved a lot my psychology units compared to first year. However as they were all required units for the degree there was a bit more stress in maintaining her average for honours eligibility, which she managed to still do however.

In response to any concerns , stats proved itself as the cliché hated stressful unit for psychology students, Macquarie also offers PAL (peer assisted learning) for the unit which she believed was a major contributor to the final result.

She really enjoyed all other subjects, in particular cognitive processes 1, and she hopes to complete cognitive processes 2 as an elective next year.

As always thank you all so much for your support, both financial and your genuine interest in my university experience and hopefully making a trip to Narooma sometime before the year ends.

Double Sapphire Paul Harris

Narooma Rotarian Charmaine White recently returned from a week's volunteer work as a dentist in isolated indigenous communities in the Kimberley in Western Australia. Volunteering through Rotary is a passion of hers, using her professional skills to help others; last year she volunteered in Jamaica. 'This time I worked with the Kimberley Dental Team in two communities between Halls Creek and Broome which involved a fair bit of travelling' Ms White said, adding she was one of four dentists in the team. 'One community had about five families, the other about 40 families, and none had seen a dentist for quite a while,' she said.'We did a range of work and as much as we could in the time available. One lady had three extractions so you can imagine her relief when they were done.' Ms White said while only a short visit, she did gain a sense of health care issues in remote communities and the lack of health education.'One of the messages the Team was keen to get across was that everyone can look after their teeth,' she said.Rotary in Western Australia is a great supporter of the Kimberley Dental Team project.Ms White received a Double Sapphire Pin at last week's Rotary meeting in recognition of her volunteer work in Jamaica last year.She was part of a team of 50 from seven different countries who participated in a Rotary Matching Grant Dental-Eye Mission over three weeks. Ms White explained that an anonymous benefactor was so impressed with what they were doing and with Rotary's involvement that he donated thousands of dollars to the Rotary Foundation and asked that each member of the team in turn be recognised as a Paul Harris Fellow in appreciation of their contribution. This is the third time she has been recognised as a Paul Harris Fellow, hence her Double Sapphire Pin.
